Geisinger treats complex cases with extraordinary success.

George was an active outdoorsman and had no idea that he had a life-threatening condition. But his family doctor pointed out a danger and referred him to Geisinger where he was diagnosed with an abdominal aortic aneurysm (AAA). Geisinger surgeon James Elmore, MD, inserted a stent into George's bloodstream, relieving the problem without major incisions. Now George is back to enjoying the great outdoors.

Geisinger was the first hospital in the area to perform this lifesaving endograft AAA repair procedure. Our vascular and endovascular specialists are skilled in using the latest technological advancements for treating diseases and disorders of the arteries and vascular system, including minimally invasive surgical techniques.

If you have a serious health problem, ask your doctor to refer you to a Geisinger specialist or call 1-800-275-6401. We were there for George, and we're here for you too.
